VOLUME 4

Now volume 4 begins. Thank you for your continuous support. When it comes to "thank you," lately, my dear readers send me illustrations of Hirumaka characters a lot more than before. Well, I didn't know that when other people write about the characters I've created, that it would make me this happy. It feels like I'm sharing my world with a variety of people. It's wonderful.

Fan mail always cheer me up, too. I read every single one of them with a grinning or bashful face. Some of them are even touching. Those are the moments when I feel happy being a manga artist. What? Does that make me sound too serious? Haha, of course, even I get serious sometimes. It's just that the power is not released before the deadline...

Alright, now please enjoy
"Daytime Shooting Star"
volume 4! ☆

• A loose fishtail braid for her hair

• Eyebrows are drawn lightly with powder

• Lots of "London" on both upper and lower eyelids

• No eye shadow used, just eyeliner

• Pink blush on her cheekbones

• After applying some lip balm, a bit of gloss in the center of the lips and we are...

♪ finished! ♪

Yeah she doesn't have much makeup on in the story (or does she?)

You wouldn't be able to figure out who she is if she had a bunch of makeup on so I kept it simple. Plus she seems more "Suzume"-ish without makeup.

"London" is a high end cosmetic brand referring to the mascara in this case

Succubus

Requested Illustration

The request was a hot girl, so I somehow drew a Succubus (but ended up drawing something slightly closer to Satana!)

I like both men and women with brown skin.
And I like something like a motif on their heads and horn-like feet
♪ like a half-demon.

I like a pair of wings
(from the flat ones to the fluffy ones)

Well, this is the illustration that I thought to make with that idea.
